

SDCL LEARNING GOALS

As a result of the student experience at Concordia College, students will be responsibly engaged in the world.

PRACTICAL COMPETENCE

Being a capable and responsible adult requires the ability to effectively manage daily life. Students will recognize the importance of self-regulation, habit formation, and self-care as essential elements of well-being. Students will apply resilience, knowledge, and skills as they make informed decisions that help them navigate their personal and professional lives.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

Knowing who you are and what you stand for requires self-awareness and is a lifelong process. Students will cultivate a sense of self, informed by their strengths, values and beliefs, the social groups they identify with, and their lived experiences. Students will use this sense of self to guide their actions and the choices they make.

INTERCULTURAL MATURITY

In a world with increasing interdependence it is critical that students develop the capacity and desire to skillfully engage across human differences. Students will ask curious questions and utilize active listening to engage a diversity of identities, experiences, and perspectives. By acknowledging systemic oppression and using their individual agency students will commit to creating policies, practices, and procedures that foster equity and inclusion for all.

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

As students are sent forth to influence their communities from the local to the global, it is imperative that they do so responsibly and collaboratively. Students will develop communities, manage conflict, repair harm and build healthy relationships. These restorative practices will foster communities that are resilient and sustainable.
